Being scrupulously honest and exact in all his dealings, he had the undivided confidence of all his neighbors, while his quiet and unobtrusive manners secured the friendship and respect of all who knew him. No man, perhaps, ever did more for the town or was actuated by a more unselfish motive. The town was prompt in acknowledging his virtue, for they often bestowed upon him all the honorable positions which were within the gift of the town. He represented the town at the age of twenty-eight, and was subsequently re-elected nine times; held the office Lister for twenty-five years, and that of Selectman for twenty-nine years. Was elected Town Clerk in 1833, and he continued in that office for twenty-two years; and in 1842 received the appointment of Postmaster which he resigned in 1846."
